

FIG. 152.—One week after direct application of standard droplet of dichlorethylsulphide to the cornea. Lids still somewhat edematous. They were sealed by a marked purulent exudate which adheres along the lid margins and to the adjacent hair. A marked purulent rhinitis, referable to involvement of the mucosa through the nasolacrimal duct, is evident