

FIG. 179.—Median nerve lesion in middle third of forearm; nerve exposed above and below lesion and marked with identification sutures. In this instance the nerve is exposed below the pronator teres by dividing the flexor sublimis digitorum. A, Branch to pronator teres; B, pronator teres; C, bicipital fascia; D, flexor carpi radialis; E, median nerve, upper segment; F, flexor sublimis digitorum, split; G, median nerve, lower segment; H, median nerve; I, brachial artery; J, radial artery; K, brachioradialis